Guys, I would like to remind everyone that Submissions closes midnight 26th April 2019.

The brief
Using equipment hired (for free) from the Design Technology Store on campus (the MDS AV Hub on the Auckland campus), or using your own, you will be taking street photography (also known as urban photography). Looking at the everyday lives of people in public places, your photos will need to include an urban setting and a human element. Digital manipulation in post is permitted, but to only enhance the authenticity of the moment captured. Details on applicable adjustments see below under the heading Digital Manipulation.

Open to all students at Billy Blue College of Design, Torrens University Australia and Media Design School, you will need to sign up to Frontier to participate and submit. All entries will be shown in the gallery below and later judged for prize-winning submissions. See prizes below. Judges will be selected from each campus to ensure fairness.

Collaboration with Billy Blue Creative

Billy Blue Creative, in collaboration with Torrens TV, are currently working on a series of interviews aimed at students, designers, and creatives alike. The series, titled 'Eussen Designer Series', and hosted by John Eussen, unpacks our guest’s success stories and talks all things design. So far we’ve had two prominent stars, Alex Zabotto-Bentley and AthenaX Levendi.

With many more known designers and artists lined up, we are looking for some extra help on set to learn and be involved in the creation process of this series. In collaboration with the AV Club, we want you all become involved. Lead by Nick Valeontis, Torrens’ internal Videographer, you will be involved with lighting, camera setup and operation, audio setup and recording, and general on set experience.

This is a fantastic opportunity to work in a real set with prominent guests.

What are we about:

- Learning how different equipment works
- Practicing your skills in production
- Gaining confidence and experience
- Meeting industry professionals and making new contacts.

Announcement

It is my pleasure to announce the coming Still life workshop with Sue Stubbs

About Sue Stubbs: “I get up knowing that every day something incredibly emotional, overwhelming, intense or exciting can happen. I love the process of image making and I love seeing the world through a camera — it cuts the noise and allows focus on a single frame.”

From the food that we eat and where it comes from, to the making of beautiful or extraordinary Sue Stubbs’ work brings to life and features in campaigns and projects of some of Australia’s best-known brands, most loved magazines and most treasured books.

Raised in the rural outskirts of Melbourne on small country properties with wide open spaces and dirt roads — a childhood filled with horse riding, calves in the paddocks and eggs from the chook house; Sue’s portfolio reaches to the hustle of New York, the world of fashion and advertising in London and to Sydney where she lives with her two sons, a border collie, rescue cat and rescue greyhound.

She works with a busy, trusted team between Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane and can’t imagine life without a camera.

Sue has recently released a book called Beyond the Garden Gate, published by Thames and Hudson. Sue is also featured in this month’s issue of Home Beautiful magazine.

Announcement

It is my pleasure to announce the coming Editing workflow workshop with Nick Valeontis Videographer at Billy Blue College of Design

http://billybluecreative.com

About Nick Valeontis — Videographer Nick is the cultural result of merging German efficiency with a Mediterranean chill. Never sitting still as a child, curiosity took him beyond following the manual and into his own creations. Needing an outlet for his skill Nick took to the lens as his medium. He took the opportunity to hone his skill during a Bachelor of Media Arts at COFA with a strong emphasis on technical skills blended with concept and purpose. Taking what he learnt around the world, Nick is pursuing the perfect story

See you on the 25 July 2018!
